

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Ernest Skinner, the 17-year-old youth who confessed Tuesday morning to having set fire to the house in which the owner, Clarence T. Miller, burned to death at Howards Valley, in the town of Hampton, Tuesday, at 2 a. m., was brought here in charge of State Officers Howard A. Elliott and Arthur W. Williams and locked up at the police station just before the noon hour. Skinner was held here until late in the afternoon, when he was taken back to Hampton to be put to sleep in a justice's court, later being lodged in Brooklyn jail to await trial in the superior court as told in a story covering the crime in this issue of The Bulletin.

Cornet Arthur G. Hill and Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer were local officers who made a trip to the location of the accident.

A school bus that has been silent since Halloween will ring out again at the graded school on School street this morning. Chief John McFarland having recovered the tongue at Dayville Tuesday morning. The tongue of the bell disappeared Halloween, when some boys made their way into the school building, climbed up into the tower and detached it. Having it in their possession that were at a loss to know just what to do with it, but finally decided upon piling it into an automobile that was parked in one of the streets in the vicinity of the school. It also happened that the automobile is the property of a Dayville man and the tongue was recovered from his garage Tuesday. The tongue had been thrown into a corner of the garage, the man who owned the car deciding that someone had been trying to pay a joke on him by leaving the tongue in his machine. Chief MacFarland has had an interview with some of the boys concerned in the escape and the matter will be disposed of in the near future.

Interest will center tomorrow (Thursday) evening in the public address, on The Washington Conference for the Reduction of Armaments to be delivered at the Westfield Congregational church in Danielson by W. J. Wilkinson, LL.D., member of the faculty of Wesleyan university. This lecture has been arranged as the first public event given under the auspices of the Danielson Federation of Churches.

As the subject of the address is of worldwide moment and of great importance, it is expected that a large attendance will be attracted. The Washington conference will consider the greatest problems and moral issues which confront the world today, Professor Wilkinson says.

An excellent program of music is to be given in connection with the lecture, and a social hour for all to follow the address.

A new schedule of mail service is now effective on the star route between Danielson and East Killingly. Mails leave East Killingly at 8 a. m. and at 3 p. m., arriving in Danielson at 8:30 a. m. and 6:15 p. m. Mails for East Killingly at 9:05 a. m. and at 5:30 p. m.

Members of the Windham County Agricultural society, oldest organization of its kind in the United States, will hear a report that will be immensely pleasing to them when they gather at Killington hall in Brooklyn fair, will be able through its officers to tell the members that this year's fair was one of the most successful in the history of the association, and that the net profits were approximately $1500. This splendid showing was made notwithstanding the fact that the first "big" day of the fair opened with the promise of a storm, which broke early in the afternoon and was the means of keeping hundreds who would have joined the throng on the grounds from attending the fair.

Association members will hear from the reports also that the treasury contains about $3300 at this time, this notwithstanding that much money has been spent for repairs at the grounds during the past year.

Life members are being particularly invited to attend Saturday's meeting, and attention has been called to the fact that they are possessed of voting rights.

State roads and live management have been big factors in bringing about such a revival of interest in the Brooklyn fair and make it such a rejuvenated success. Fully alive to their opportunity, the management already is planning to make next year's fair more attractive than ever. The opening of a new state highway between Brooklyn and Hampton furnishes a route over which hundreds of additional patrons will be attracted to the fair from the western end of the county.

As was the case this year, it is proposed that the last day of the fair hereafter be known as Williamite day. Williamite showed a great revival of interest in the fair, this year, a fact that is very pleasing to fair officials and the association membership at large.

If you would see a sight of interest, be in front of the Attawaugus hotel this (Wednesday) afternoon and watch a battalion of school children drink 140 half pints of milk, which is to be given to them by William S. Brown as part of a county campaign to boost milk as a food.

The entire 140 half pints, all bottled, will represent one day's output by a thoroughbred Holstein-Friesian cow which has been under observation and test for the past week. The children have been informed through their teachers that the milk will be awaiting them and the youngsters have promised to be there and dispose of it promptly upon the giving of the signal to help themselves.

The value of selling through streets as compared to marketing them with water has been made strikingly manifest during the past few months. Oiling was tried in the borough this year for the first time. It has been a success. The streets remain in good condition and are free from dust. Indications are that the oiling plan will be extended to other streets next spring.

Church and factory bells will ring out Friday afternoon, noon, joining their tones with bells that will be sounding out recognition of Armistice day and of the Washington conference from coast to coast.

Of large importance to unfortunate and afflicted people everywhere is the fact that the annual roll call drive of the American Red Cross will be inaugurated on Friday—Armistice day. In Danielson, as elsewhere, throughout the nation and will continue until Thanksgiving.

As is generally understood, the roll call drive is the annual canvass for the renewal of memberships. In the jurisdiction of the Danielson chapter, which includes Brooklyn and all of the town of Killingly with the exception of Dayville, there were 2,000 members during the days of the World war—days when the suffering of humanity was more strongly brought home to the average person than in these days of peace. Nevertheless humanity continues to suffer and needs the aid of all who are of good will. The World war is over but the Red Cross still battles on, fighting against tuberculosis, against the ravages of fire and tempest, against cancer, against all the evils that afflict the poor and unfortunate and the victims of great disasters.

Here in Danielson during the past year the Red Cross has done much to make possible the regular holding of tuberculosis clinics, from which numerous persons have derived great good. The Red Cross has helped make possible the services of the district nurse and has accomplished good in other forms. The members of these kindly works cannot continue unless Brooklyn and Killingly people respond to the roll call drive. Mrs. Ernest R. Warren will direct the drive and is now engaged in completing her organization for the work. It is proposed to make, as near as may be possible, a house to house canvass for members and it is hoped many memberships will be volunteered from those who may not be reached by the workers.

Blakely snatched victory from defeat Tuesday afternoon on the Quinebaug grounds when he raced over the line for a touchdown for Killingly High in their second game of the season with the fast Putnam High school team. The final score was 20 to 14 in Killingly's favor. Many members of the student body of both teams witnessed the game, which was snappily played and looked like a Putnam victory until Blakely scored a touchdown with only about two minutes to play.

At some stores in Danielson eggs were being sold at $1.00 per dozen Tuesday, a price curiously on a par with wartime figures. The price looked mighty high in view of the fact that grain is so very much cheaper than during the war, but the explanation was offered that eggs are scarce and that the demand is sufficient to absorb the supply coming in, even at the high price. Farmers were selling fresh eggs Tuesday as low as 50 cents per dozen.

James Kent of Elmville is a member of a party that are in camp in an outlying corner of Woodstock this week and next, devoting time to coon hunting and other similar sport.

Railroad police were engaged Tuesday in investigating the circumstances surrounding the robbery of a freight car in the local yard during Sunday. A seal on a car was broken and five pieces of dress goods, destined for delivery to a firm at Grand Rapids, Mich., taken out of a case. Four pieces of the goods, shipped by a Southbridge mill, have been recovered from where they had been hidden beside the track. It is believed that the robbery is the work of either boys or young men.

Putnam High school was defeated 20 to 14 in a fast and well played football game with the Killingly High school team at Danielson Tuesday afternoon, losing out in the final two minutes of play when Blakely of the Killingly team slipped across the line for a touchdown, which wiped out Putnam's lead and gave Killingly the game. Many of the men-

bers of the Putnam High school were at Danielson to see the game, which ties, one and one, the series between the two schools.

Putnam has another game scheduled for Friday afternoon of this week, when the Bartlett High school team of Webster comes here.

If he is at all given to sleep, Theodore Nolan will be tempted to observe that "I'll tell the world that Putnam is a good town for a man who tries to buy a bottle of moonshine and get away with it under the nose of the police police."

Theodore tried it Tuesday afternoon. New his looked up at the police station. He will see the judge this morning, and the judge will ask him to stand in a charge of having been intoxicated.

Theodore sidled into an alley off Main street right in the heart of the business section Tuesday afternoon and after balancing on one leg so as to peek back to ascertain whether Captain Burger and Officer Jarvala, who were across the street, were watching him he disconnected himself from one dollar and was about to connect himself with a quart when Officer Jarvala suddenly appeared around the corner and took both the quart and Theodore into custody. Both were taken to the police station, the quart sparkling like a flock of rainbows.

The democrats of the fourth ward, at their caucus held Monday evening nominated Alfred Pison as their candidate for alderman at the biennial city election to be held in December. This starts a series of ward caucuses to be followed later by city caucuses and, likewise, has started the political pot boiling.

The promise is that there is going to be some real live political activity in this
